

CRS Newsletter February 18, 2020

Dear Members and Fellows of the CRS, dear subscribers of the CRS mailing list

With this newsletter we provide information and activities related to reproducibility and scientific integrity. You will also find activities by the CRS. For future newsletters, please let us know of any information that is worthwhile spreading.

Content

1. Leibniz Institute for Psychology Information (ZPID) Roadshow in Zurich on April 7
2. A new measure to rate the quality of journal policies being used to promote transparency and reproducibility: the TOP Factor
3. When Numbers Don't Tell the Whole Story, UZH news article and lecture slides from Stephen Curry
4. Videos from Metascience 2019 at Stanford now available
5. Dates for ReproducibiliTea in the spring semester 2020 have been set

1. ZPID - Leibniz Institute for Psychology Information offers the academic community a unique collection of services that facilitate their work. To learn more about how to take advantage of these and other ZPID services come to the Zurich Roadshow presentation on April 7 at 16:15 - 18:00 in BIN-1-B.01. Registration is here <https://leibniz-psychology.org/roadshow/>
2. The Center for Open Science launched the TOP Factor, a new measure to rate the quality of journal policies being used to promote transparency and reproducibility. See here for more information: <https://cos.io/about/news/new-measure-rates-quality-research-journals-policies-promote-transparency-and-reproducibility/>
3. Quantifiable metrics like the journal impact factor should not be the only way of assessing scientific outputs, said Stephen Curry of Imperial College London and DORA chairman at an event held at UZH. See here for the news article <https://www.news.uzh.ch/de/articles/2020/DORA-Declaration.html> and here for the slides https://www.gleichstellung.uzh.ch/dam/jcr:fdc1ccbb-21bb-4f6b-b0f1-274ad22d6946/200206-UZH-DORA-Curry_1.pdf
4. Videos of the presentations and panels from Metascience 2019 are now publicly accessible: <https://www.metascience2019.org/presentations/>
5. The Dates for the ReproducibiliTea in the spring semester 2020 have been set to March 12, March 26, April 2, April 30 and May 14, 16:00 - 17:00. Topics and location will be announced soon.